MONDAY, DECEMBER 20.

A dispatch from Madison says that the state officers-elect will assemble in the governor's office at noon on Monday, Jan. 3, and take the oath of office before Chief Justice Cole. They will then take formal possession of their respective offices. In the evening they will have a public reception in the capitol for the public. No cards being issued, all who desire to attend are at liberty to do so. It is not expected that any public business will be transacted that day.

Our sister city, Madison, has made considerable progress during the past year, as the building statistics show. During the year improvements to the extent of $526,925 have been made. The improvements in the various wards were: first, $65,025; second, $60,850; third, $30,950; fourth, $107,756; fifth, $200,850; sixth, $61,500. The heaviest improvements were science hall and other buildings, $160,000; courthouse, $83,000. The St. Paul road made improvements in the city to the extent of $15,000. The value of improvements for 1885 was $474,00, making the increase this year over $52,000.

A DISGRACE TO CIVILIZATION.

There is no doubt that the Georgia system of leasing convict labor disgraces that state. It has existed for some time, and yet no serious effort has been made by any of the public men of that state to abolish the evil. The system became so full of evil, in fact disgraceful, that Governor Gordon in his message to the legislature the other day used these facts:

"There are objections, as the legislature is fully aware, urged to the present lease system. These objections in no degree or respect involve personal criticisms, but are lodged wholly against the system itself.

"It places pecuniary interests in conflict with humanity.

"It makes possible the infliction of greater punishment than the law and the courts have imposed.

"It renders impracticable the proper care by the state of the health of the prisoners, or their requisite separation according to classes, sexes and conditions.

"It reduces to the minimum the chances for reformation.

"It places convict labor in many instances in direct competition with the honest labor of the state."

This step toward reform was largely caused by the vigorous efforts of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Men, women and children are worked in gangs. Women and children, guilty of some petty offense, are thrust among the hardest criminals. They have no exemption from the chain-gang, and that is going beyond the most brutal practices of the old European system in the time of John Howard. The members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in their petition, show that the sixteen hundred Georgia convicts are leased for about $12,000 a year, this being the surplus left after deducting incidental expenses. Tennessee, with the same general system, obtains over $100,000 a year for 1,300 convicts. The convict lease system of the south everywhere tends to give the lessee a dangerous power in the state, and to make the latter an agent for the advancement of private interests. It fosters one of the worst forms of monopoly, and all its influence are degrading and corrupting.

One would suppose that the state officers of Georgia would profit by the lessons taught by other states, but it appears that the humane and enlightened system of Wisconsin, for instance, has no meaning for Georgia. In Wisconsin, the leased convicts have regular hours of labor, kind treatment, moderate work during ten hours a day, wholesome food, evening schools, and a library from which can be obtained the choicest reading. This is the difference between the systems of Wisconsin and Georgia. The dark ages never showed hardly a worse system of treating criminals than does Georgia in 1886. It shocks the moral sense of humanity, is an insult to common decency, and is a sad commentary on our civilization.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union is doing a splendid work in Georgia, and it is hoped that they will keep on in their efforts until the curse is wiped out of the state.

THE SOCIALISTS AND CAPITAL.

In Chicago there is an organization or an association called the Commercial Club, to which about sixty prominent business men belong. These men recently discussed a question something like this: "Commercial and Industrial Antagonisms; What can be done to avert the evils they threaten?" The men who belong to the club are practical men. They discussed the question soberly, thoughtfully and impartially. But the leaders of the socialistic element in Chicago, did not like the conclusions of the Commercial club, and therefore wrote an answer in which were found some statements touching the difference between the earnings of capitalists and those of farmers and laborers. These socialists claim that the adverse condition of many laboring men has been caused by the growing power of machinery, which in 1880 was equal to 3,600,000 horse power, or an addition in ten years to the laboring force of the country of 9,000,000 men, while the actual number of employes added to this force during this period was only 400,000 men. Not only is this rapid increase of the power of machinery a source of discontent to the 10,250,000 laboring men between eighteen and forty-four years of, age in this country, but the fact that this machinery is controlled by 21,000 men threatens every interest they hold dear. Were it not for this, would 2,750,000 men receive a wage of $346 a year, or less than one dollar a day, for the support of a family of five, or less than the state allows for the support of its paupers? Of this number of workers 532,000 are women, 182,000 children, thus proving that the head of the family is unable, apart from the help of the other members of his household, to keep the wolf from the door. The average wage of farmers and farm hands, of whom there are 8,000,000, is $289, or less than eighty cents a day. Vanderbilt made from 1880 to 1885 more than a million farmers. The profits of 2,000 banks during this time were equal to the earnings of 500,000 farmers, the net gains of 100 railroad companies to the earnings of 2,500,000 farmers, "while money lenders, mortgage shavers, and official plunderers pocketed more than the earnings of the remaining 4,000,000 farmers."

Then the socialists make another point which in substance is as follows: The railway employes are discontented because 230,000 stockholders, owning 170,000 miles of road, representing about eight billion of dollars, charge for service about eight hundred millions a year, and pay 300,000 employees about a dollar a day. That stockholders should do nothing, and say nothing, but consent to draw the dividends which the management of these roads by about twenty men secures, can not fail to be a cause of deep and growing discontent by railroad employes.

And so the complaint goes on claiming that labor has no protection and that the workingmen are weak and doomed by the strong. All this is bosh and is the grumbling of men who do more to oppress the laboringmen than all the capitalists in the country combined. The socialists who answered the Commercial club are labor agitators, who encourage strikes, and live off assessment made against the poor men who belong to their organizations.

Their answer means that inventions pertaining to labor-saving machinery must stop; that the manufacture of machinery for the farm or the shop must cease; that capital has no right to invest in railway enterprises without a distribution of the profits among the men who labor but make no investments; and that capital, regardless of the condition of the money market, must insure good wages to the workingmen. This is what the argument of the socialists means, and nothing less.

There is no doubt that in some instances labor has a grievance, and that in some cases they earn, and therefore deserve, more wages than they receive; but the Chicago socialists should remember that with the present supply and demand of labor, wages can not be expected to increase. If the socialists shall find out some way by which the importation of tens of thousands of cheap laborers to this country every year, can be prevented, they will do much to improve the wage condition of the workingmen of the United States.

Eruption of the Skin Cured.

Brockville, Ontario, Canada, December, 2, 1885.—I have used Brandreth's Pills for the past fifteen years, and think them the best cathartic and anti-bilious remedy known. For some five years I suffered with an eruption of the skin that gave me great pain and annoyance. I tried different blood remedies, but, although gaining strength, the itching was unrelieved. I finally concluded to take a thorough course of Brandreth's Pills. I took six each night for four nights, then five, four, three, two, lessening each time by one, and then for one month took one every night, with the happy result that now my skin is perfectly clear and has been so ever since. His Attempt to Kill His Wife Foiled by His Daughters. He Turns on Them with a Tiger's Ferocity—Both Girls Shot Fatally—The Ruffian Arrested—A Black Record of Woman-Killing.

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 20.—Erie had a thrilling domestic tragedy Saturday. Christian F. Schau, a tailor, shot his daughter Minnie, aged 22, through the heart, killing her, then shot Annie, the next youngest daughter, through the body, inflicting fatal injuries. The Schau family have lived in constant fear for years that the inhuman husband and father would sooner or later murder them. Saturday noon, while the family were at dinner, Schau procured his revolver and commenced his bloody work at the table. He first attacked his wife, seizing her by the neck, and when about to blow her brains out was seized by his daughters, who pleaded for their mother's life. Mrs. Schau managed to tear herself from the range of the weapon. Her little son Frankie had managed to open the door, which Schau had barred, and Mrs. Schau ran out under fire.

The infuriated brute then, turning, shot Miss Minnie dead, and, turning his murderous weapon on Annie, shot her also. Seeing that she was still alive, he was about to repeat the shot, when the girl pleaded she was shot and would die. Schau then tried to shoot himself, but failed. He left the bloody scene, and was about leaving the city when overhauled by Officer James Higgins. Schau turned upon his pursuer and fired twice, without effect, and, seeing that he would be captured, was about to repeat his attempt at suicide when the officer struck him down and disarmed him.

While on the way to prison the crowd made a dash to get the prisoner, and would have lynched him on the spot had it not been for the resistance of the officers in charge. Schau, in an interview, says the girls in taking the revolver from him shot themselves. The dying girl made a deposition Saturday night. Schau, a few years ago, attempted to kill his wife, and was only prevented by an officer, who almost killed Schau in the rescue of the ruffian's wife.

By Poison and Pistol.

ELMIRA, N. Y., Dec. 20.—The details of a double tragedy have just come to light at Penn Yan, Yates county, by which a young woman was killed and her paramour is dying. The principals in the bloody drama were Dorr M. Hamlin, station agent of the Full Brook Railroad company at Penn Yan, and Muriel Alderman, a handsome, accomplished, and well-connected young unmarried woman of the place. Both fell in love, and, unknown to Hamlin's wife, became criminally intimate. Thursday night Hamlin went to the young woman's house, and both, fearing that their intimacy was exposed, decided to end their lives with poison. Each took a large dose of morphine, and retired in each other's arms. Hamlin's absence from duty created alarm, and after a long search by his clerk he was found in Miss Alderman's room, with the door locked. The couple were found alive, but stupefied from the effects of the drug. Hamlin when aroused seized a revolver and shot Miss Alderman in the breast, inflicting a fatal wound. He then turned the weapon and shot himself in the head, it is believed fatally. Hamlin is highly connected.

Spurned a Barber's Love.

GREENFIELD, Ohio, Dec. 20.—Saturday night George Hackett, aged 22, a negro barber, shot Hattie Graves, a colored domestic in the family of Samuel Douglass, and then turned the weapon on himself, inflicting a wound that will probably terminate fatally. Hackett had been paying attention to Miss Graves, and while they were standing at the gate about 11 o'clock, he proposed marriage to her, but the girl promptly rejected Hackett's offer and started for the house. Just as she turned the door knob he overtook her and said:

"If you don't love me, you shall love no other person."

He then fired at such short range that her clothing caught fire, and she would have burned to death had not Mr. Douglass come to her assistance and extinguished the flames. The girl's injuries, while painful, are not considered dangerous.

WHOLESALE BODY SNATCHING.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 20.—Just after dark Saturday a covered wagon, drawn by an old gray horse, driven by two negroes, stopped at Harry Gantz's half-way house, three miles east of the city. The men got out and went into the house for a drink. Mrs. Gantz, thinking the men were hucksters, with true feminine curiosity went out to investigate what was in the wagon. She lifted the back of the cover and was horrified to see the dead body of a negro. She gave no alarm, however, until after the men had departed, when she informed her husband of what was disclosed to her gaze. Mr. Gantz at once mounted a horse and rode to Highlandtown, where he informed Constable Grace of the ghastly load in the wagon. Grace telegraphed to the eastern police station in this city and Capt. Auld sent the patrol wagon and a number of officers out in the direction of Highlandtown to capture the ghouls. Near the latter place they met a wagon answering the description given by telephone. One of the occupants of the wagon jumped out and ran into the fields, making good his escape. The other man was captured without resistance. The officers then looked into the wagon and instead of finding one body they found four corpses piled one upon the other—a white woman, a white man and two colored men. The wagon and the ghoul were taken to the eastern station.

When the news spread, great crowds congregated in front of the police station and the excitement was intense, heightened by this grave robbery following so closely upon the murder of the old woman last week for the dissecting room. The colored man arrested gave his name as Edward Warfield, but refuses to say anything about how or where he procured the bodies. Dr. William T. Cathwell, of the Baltimore university hospital, examined the corpses and states that they are recently deceased. An investigation will be made by the city and county police.

A CLEVER ADVERTISEMENT.

How It Was Used to Rob a Young Emigrant of His Last Cent.

BOSTON, Dec. 20.—Some time ago a New York paper published in its columns a very clever advertisement of its own circulation partly in the form of a United States bond for $1,000, and including pictures of cabinet officers, and in one corner figures, as if the number of the bond, of the paper's circulation.

On Nov. 21 Martin Ohlson, a young Swede, sailed from Glasgow with his bride. All his money, 3,750 crowns, he exchanged at a broker's in Glasgow for what he supposed to be a certificate of equal value to be cashed in this country. He intended to settle here as a farmer. Saturday morning he received some ready money to pay his board bill and went to a broker's office on State street to get his certificate washed. The broker looked at the paper and pronounced it worthless, it being evidently the advertisement that had appeared in the New York paper.

it is to delude a poor sufferer into the belief that some worthless liniment will cure rheumatism and neuralgia. Honesty is the best policy in the manufacture of proprietary articles as in all other matters, and the fact that the proprietors of Athlophoros have never claimed for it even all its merit would warrant has not a little to do with its wonderful popularity, and the thousands of grateful testimonials received by them show that their policy has been wise as well as right.

Experience has amply demonstrated that mere outward applications are worthless. The disease has its seat in the blood, and any remedy to be successful must deal with the obstructive acid which poisons and inflames it.

Athlophoros acts on the blood, muscles and joints directly. It takes the poison out of the blood and carries it out of the system; it invigorates the action of the muscles and limbers the stiffness of the joints. It reaches the liver and kidneys, cleansing them from irritating substances, and, if followed up after the rheumatic conditions cease, it will restore these organs to regularity and health.

Otto Auwers, Watertown, Wis., says: "I have been more or less subject to severe rheumatism for fourteen years. During that time I was never free from the disease until I used Athlophoros. I have been laid up for months at a time; the last attack was four months. I could not assist myself, my wife was obliged to feed me and I had to be lifted in and out of bed. I have spent at least a thousand dollars with nothing but temporary relief. When I used the first bottle of Athlophoros I began to feel relief and when I had finished taking the fourth bottle I was well and have not been troubled with rheumatism since."

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

TARIFF LEGISLATION PROBABLY DEAD IN THIS CONGRESS.

Morrison's Horizontal Bill Gets a Second Rejection, but by a Closer Vote—Some of Our Statesmen Nipped by the Wall Street Flurry—Bragg's Committee Disapproves Convict Labor — Important Telephone Suit.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 20.—In spite of a drenching rainstorm the galleries of the house were crowded before noon Saturday, attracted by the notice that Morrison's tariff measure would be called up. The representatives of the people and the "masses" bore with ill-concealed impatience the reading of the journal and the debate on the Oklahoma bill. As Barnes of Georgia finished his speech opposing the measure, Morrison rose slowly and deliberately and asked that his special order be taken up. McKinley demanded that the vote be yea and nay. The roll was rapidly called, and at 2 o'clock the clerk read the result: Yeas, 140; nays, 154.

Morrison, who appeared absolutely imperturbable throughout the voting, had begun to nervously pass a pencil from one hand to the other as the final moment approached, but as the clerk's voice was heard he stopped all action and stared fixedly at the speaker. As the short sentence was uttered which told him that his plan would not be considered by a majority of his fellows, he turned carelessly around, and looked at the clock with an air of indifference, as who should say: "Well, that settles it, for me." There was a faint cheer from the desks on the right, but three rapid taps of the speaker's gavel brought silence. The galleries cleared as by magic, and the Morrison tariff bill was a thing of the past.

Scott, Mitchell, Glover, Storm, Oates, Reese, and Tucker, who would have voted in the affirmative, were paired with Little, Whiting, Warner of Missouri, Henley, Gallinger, Pidcock, and Browne of Indiana, who would have voted in the negative. Reagan of Texas entered the house a few minutes after the completion of the call and asked leave to have his vote recorded, but the speaker held that under the rules he could not submit the request to the house, and Reagan was obliged to content himself with the statement that had he been present he would have voted in the affirmative. It happened somehow that Reagan was taking a bath at the time the house was taking a vote on this important question, and when he heard that the house was voting, the representative from Texas did a good deal of unavailing fuming and "cussing," so they say, because he could not get dressed in time to put in his vote. Blanchard of Louisiana announced that his colleague, King, who was absent with the leave of the house, was unable to secure a pair. If he had been present he would have voted aye.

Owing to the deaths of Dowdney, Arnot and Price, the membership of the house is reduced to 322. There were 303 votes cast and seven pairs announced, showing that five members were absent without pairs. These were Aiken of South Carolina (who has never qualified as a member of the present house), Ellsberry of Ohio, King of Louisiana, Reagan of Texas, and Reid of North Carolina. Twenty-six Democrats voted in the negative. Of these New York contributed five (Bliss, Merriman, Muller, Spriggs, and Stahlnecker); Pennsylvania five (Boyle, Curtin, Ermentrout, Randall, and Sowden); Ohio seven (Foran, Geddes, Le Fevre, Seney, Warner, Wilkins, and Campbell); Louisiana four (Gay, Irion, St. Martin, and Wallace); New Jersey two (Green and McAdoo); Illinois two (Lawler and Ward), and Alabama one (Martin).

The only Republican votes for the bill came from Massachusetts and Minnesota, Hayden and Stone of the former state, and Nelson, Strait, Wakefield, and White of the latter, voting for the consideration. T. J. Campbell, Pindar, and Viele, of New York; Findlay of Maryland, and Stone and Hayden of Massachusetts, who last year voted against the consideration of the bill, Saturday voted in the affirmative. James of New York, who last year voted to consider, reversed his vote.

The affirmative vote included 146 Democrats and 6 Republicans, and the negative vote 128 Republicans and 26 Democrats. Illinois gave 8 votes for and 12 against tariff reduction, Lawler and Ward voting with the Republicans; Indiana gave 9 for and 3 against; Iowa 4 for and 7 against; Michigan 7 for and 4 against; Minnesota 4 for and 1 against, and Wisconsin 3 for and 6 against. The division of the vote by sections of the union was as follows: New England cast 5 affirmative and 18 negative; the middle states cast 12 affirmative and 53 negative; the southern states, including Missouri and West Virginia, 95 affirmative and 16 negative; the western and northwestern states, 37 affirmative and 59 negative; the Pacific states gave no affirmative but 8 negative votes.

There is very much interest in the question whether there will be any further attempts at tariff legislation at this session. Morrison says that he will not again endeavor to reach his bill. He regards the vote as final.

The Republican senators have now in contemplation to adopt a resolution reciting that in the opinion of the senate the surplus ought to be reduced and some of the taxes removed, and that the best way to do this is to take off some of the duties on sugar, and possibly the tax on so much of high wines as are used in the arts and manufactures, and to abolish the duty on tobacco. With such a resolution before the house, with the endorsement of the senate, the Republicans think they can afford to leave the subject where it is.

THE HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

Salient Points of the Business Transacted on Saturday.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 20.—Saturday was a momentous day in the house, the death-knell of any tariff legislation this session apparently being struck. The early business was as follows: Non-concurrence in the senate amendments to the house bill authorizing the employment of mail messengers in the postal service; Dibble asked unanimous consent to put on its passage a bill appropriating $300,000 to build a public building at Charleston, S. C., to which Hepburn objected, saying Charleston was too unsettled for the erection of new buildings. Dibble remarked in reply to this that if the appropriation failed, the government would have to transact business in that city in the open air. In committee of the whole the house then took up the Okalahoma bill, but it was still pending when the morning hour expired, and the committee rose and everybody on the floor and in the galleries, which were crowded, was at once on the qui vive for the great fight of the day. Perfect silence reigned as Morrison rose and moved to go into committee on revenue bills. McKinley of Ohio was at once on his feet with a demand for the yeas and nays, which were ordered. It was a close struggle and few could have predicted the result as the votes were given. The end was reached in about half an hour, and the clerk read the state of the vote—yeas, 149; nays, 154.

A struggle then took place for precedence of measures. Herbert of Alabama desired to consider the Pacific railway funding bill, but Springer opposed it and said if it was taken up he would filibuster against its consideration, as he desired to speak upon it and have it postponed for that purpose until after the holidays. Herbert carried the vote, and then Springer moved to adjourn, which was carried.

STATESMEN CAUGHT ON THE TURN.

Our Law Givers "Dropping" Their Wealth in Stock Gambling.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 20.—The Capital prints an interview with a Washington banker about the panic in Wall street last Wednesday, and about people here who lost money on account of it. He is reported as saying:

"You have no idea how deeply this city was affected by the flurry. I am satisfied that there was over $500,000 lost by men here, and the funny thing is that a great many members of congress were severely bitten. At least three-fourths of them are dabbling in stocks in one way or another, and most of them had been going long on the market, so that when the turn came they were all caught. Some of the losses were quite severe. I am told of one member who lost $40,000 and another who is $20,000 out. There is a member who made his first experience in the street a short time ago, and who realized quite a comfortable sum in Reading. So firmly convinced was he that the market was going up that he not only invested his profits in this speculation, but also hypothecated his salary for the balance of the session and put the whole amount in Lackawanna. Of course he got cleaned out."

GOT THEIR GRIPSACKS PACKED.

Congress in No Humor for Business While Turkey and Oysters Are Waiting.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 20.—Congress is so demoralized over the near approach of the holidays and the disposition of the Morrison tariff bill that it will accomplish but very little this week. It is generally believed that it will adjourn on Wednesday afternoon until Tuesday, Jan. 4, and several senators and representatives left the city for their homes Saturday night and Sunday, not to return until the opening in the new year. Quite a number of the members had their sachels ready for departure as soon as they were recorded in the vote on the tariff bill, and scarcely waited to learn the result. Those who voted with the victors were so well satisfied that "subsequent proceedings interested them no more," while those who were among the vanquished were sufficiently disgusted to "let the thing take care of itself," as they expressed it.

Military Committee on Convict Labor.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 20.—Representative Bragg, chairman of the committee on military affairs, has submitted a report to the house criticizing severely the employment of prison labor in the manufacture of boots and shoes at the military prison at Leavenworth. The report, after stating that the boots and shoes manufactured by the military convicts cost more than if made by free labor adds: The committee can not forbear expressing their conviction that the United States should not build up a manufactory to be run by convict labor in competition with the honest artisan who supports his family by the product of his labor. It is also the belief of the committee that a sentence to the Leavenworth prison for desertion, followed by an education as a shoemaker, a harness-maker, a chair-maker, or a broom-maker, good quarters, good living, a suit of clothes at the expiration of the term of sentence, transportation to his home, and $5 to refresh himself with, has no such terror in it as to tend to suppress the crime. In a humanitarian point of view much can be said in favor of it, but as an aid to military discipline, the committee think it too weak. The committee express a hope that in the near future the business of shoemaking as a penalty for desertion will be abandoned."

A Great Telephone Suit.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 20.—Unusual interest attaches to the telephone suits which have been advanced on the docket of the supreme court of the United States, and upon which arguments will begin on Jan. 24 next. The opening argument in these cases will for the first time bring the question of the validity of the Bell patents before the highest tribunal in the land. Although the government is not a party to these cases, they involve the general question at issue—the validity of the Bell patents—between the American Bell Telephone company and its dozen opponents and would-be competitors. The advanced cases consist of five appeals from decisions of the United States circuit courts, favorable to the Bell company, in Massachusetts, New York, and Pennsylvania, and cover every possible point that can be urged against the Bell patents. If Bell's opponents win the result will be the throwing open of the telephone to general competition, and in considering the case the supreme court will have before it an immense mass of testimony including innumerable court decisions, altogether presenting one of the most knotty and perplexing disputes ever settled in the highest tribunal of the land.

Good-Bye to Congressman Hewitt.

WASHINGTON, CITY, Dec. 20.—The farewell dinner of the Democratic members of the New congressional delegation to the Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, to mark his retirement from congress prior to entering upon his duties as mayor of New York on Jan. 1, took place Saturday night at Chamberlain's. Besides the fourteen members of the delegation there were a half score of guests present, among them Speaker Carlisle, Curtin, Morrison, Collins, Mills, Breckinridge, and Herbert, and Mr. Powers, M. P., of London. The occasion was entirely social and informal. By common consent politics were subordinated to prandial and fraternal courtesies. After justice had been done the menu, Cox of New York made a short speech complimentary to the retiring member, and regretting his withdrawal from the floor of the house, and Mr. Hewitt replied appropriately. A number of brief speeches were made and the guests departed for their homes at midnight.

Gen. Logan's Condition.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 20.—Gen. Logan's condition is becoming so serious that his physicians have advised him to leave for the Hot Springs of Arkansas at once, and he will go as soon as the weather, which is now damp and snowy, moderates. The inflammatory rheumatism, which has been affecting him for several weeks, is now in both legs, his right arm, and his left shoulder, so that he is almost disabled, and at times suffers intense pain. It has been growing worse for a week, and the weather has doubtless aggravated it.

Montgomery Whooping 'Em Up.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 20.—Patent Commissioner Montgomery has issued an order that after Jan. 3, the clerks in all divisions that are three months behind in their work must work from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day. It is understood that this order will embrace about half of the divisions of the patent office.

Recognized as Consul.

WASHINGTON CITY, Dec. 20.—The president has recognized Olaf Rye Wulfsberg as vice-consul of Sweeden and Norway, at Des Moines, Iowa.

Steerage Rates Reduced.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The Cunard Steamship company which has hitherto maintained its steerage rates announced Saturday that it has reduced its rates to $15 to take effect next week. This action was a surprise to the other competing British lines, as it was generally supposed the Cunard company would not lower its rates. There will be a still greater cut in the rates next week.

A Bank Statement That Surprised 'Em.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The bank statement was awaited with a great deal of interest Saturday and was a surprise. The reserves instead of showing an increase, as was expected, had decreased $72,300, specie decreased $1,040,800, legal tenders decreased $23,600, and deposits decreased $66,412,400, which shows that speculators have locked up a large amount of money.

Men and Women in Life's Prime

Who rise unrefreshed, feel languid through the day, have little appetite, and whose faces exhibit a sallow tint, are on the short route to the grave. Unless they can effect a radical change in their condition they will not reach old age. Invigoration is the only means of their physical salvation. Upon Hostetter's Stomach Bitters they can rely to furnish them with the stamina, which is a perrequisite of health, and to remove that prime cause of continued debility, indigestion and non assimilation of the food. We class these causes as one since they are joint functions of one organ, the stomach, chiefly. Built up and rehabilitated with this superb restorative of vigor, the system may bid defiance to malaria, rheumatism, bladder and kidney diseases, and other maladies prone to attack the enfeebled. The Bitters not only affords a safeguard against disease of a virulent type, but effects a prompt reform in the condition of a drowsy or disordered liver and irregular bowels.

FORCE VERSUS FINESSE

THE ELEMENTS AT WORK NOW IN DISTRACTED IRELAND.

Proclamation of the "Plan" by the British Government—How the Move Will Be Met by the Irish Leaders—Parnell Seems To Be Out of the Fight—Priests Denounced by Celtic Orators.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—The Irish executive has formally proclaimed the anti-rent campaign. The proclaiming of the campaign in Ireland is accepted by the leaders of the National league as a step on the government's part toward the suppression of the league. The funds of the league have already been transferred to France in order to prevent their seizure by the authorities, and rent moneys deposited with trustees will be secreted to guard them against government designs. The proclamation warns all persons that the inciting of tenants to refuse to pay or withhold rents is an illegal act, and that the anti-rent movement, by whatever means carried out, is a criminal conspiracy. In addition, it says that all moneys, receipts, or documents given or received for the purpose of such conspiracy are liable to seizure, and that persons in whose possession they are found shall be arrested. This sweeping measure is the production of Lord Ashbourne, lord chancellor of Ireland.

The English branch of the Irish National league has been aroused to unprecedented activity in view of the queen's proclamation. The immunity hitherto enjoyed by the English branches in previous coercive periods is now known to be seriously threatened. The government has ordered searching inquiries to be instituted as to the organization, personnel and action of the auxiliaries established in the great centers of population in England.

There is an important distinction between the collection of rents as trustees for individuals merely and the same act for the avowed purpose of devoting the money to the purposes of the Land league or any form of agrarian agitation. The former may be legal, but the latter is stated by the law officers of the crown to be indisputably illegal. The Nationalists will consequently receive rents in future only in the capacity of ordinary trustees, the real nature of the transaction being understood but not stated.

The proclamation has been posted throughout Dublin, and parcels containing the proclamation have been sent through the mails and by other means to the provinces. In view of the probable seizure of the paper, the managers of United Ireland have removed more than one-half of the plant of the journal to places of safety outside of the city. If the regular publication of the paper is suppressed, and likely it will be, it will continue to appear as it did during the time that the land league was under the ban of the government and the publication of its organs prohibited.

Mr. Parnell, who has just arrived in London, is slowly, but certainly recovering from the acute gastric attack from which he has suffered for some time. To a reporter he said, Sunday evening, that he did not intend to express an opinion concerning the plan of campaign of the National league or the action of the government against it until he had first gone to Ireland and consulted with the promoters of the plan, whom he had not seen since the last session of parliament. He also desires to obtain a fuller knowledge of various other matters before making public his views, and for those purposes he will visit Ireland shortly. Mr. Parnell declared that he was not aware that the plan of campaign against rack-rents had been devised until the fact had been published throughout England and Ireland.

Denouncing the Priests.

DUBLIN, Dec. 20.—Commoners Harrington, Deasy and Sheehan spoke at a large meeting at Killarney Sunday, each denouncing the action of the government against the league's anti-rack rent campaign. Mr. Harrington called attention to the fact that no priests were at the meeting. While lamenting the fact, he strongly condemned the clergymen, who were expected to attend and whose duty, Mr. Harrington said, it was to attend. He accused them of cowardice, and declared that the men who contributed from their scant means to the maintenance of the clergy were entitled to the moral support which their presence would give to any gathering or any cause whose object was to benefit the people.

Dr. Tanner, member for Cork, addressed a meeting at Coachford, County Cork, Sunday. In the course of his speech he prophesied the downfall of Lord Salisbury's government within three months. There were no priests present.

A monster National league meeting was held at Longford Sunday at which resolutions were passed denouncing the government for conspiring to hang Mr. O'Brien, usurp the functions of a jury and manufacture a verdict illegally, and declaring that the pretense of bringing Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon to trial was transparent, the government never having entertained a hope of bringing them to trial.

It Was Evidence He Wanted.

DUBLIN, Dec. 20.—On Saturday night a band of marauders attacked the house of a farmer named Goggins, living at Ballinprior, County Kerry. Goggins, seeing that his house was surrounded, broke through the line and fled. The beseiging party fired twice at the fleeing farmer but he escaped unhurt. A posse of police, hearing the firing came upon the scene, and the marauders fired upon them, shooting Constable Fitzgerald in the leg and inflicting a severe wound. The police then made a charge upon their assailants and succeeded in arresting twelve of them. The prisoners were arraigned before a magistrate Sunday morning and discharged "for want of evidence."

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

Supposed Mail Robbers Arrested.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 20.—Two men, one named Dytmer and the other Raynaert, the latter being also known as Eberhard, were arrested at a lodging house near Nord station Saturday night. Both are Germans and residents of London. Dytmer had in his possession when arrested German notes to the value of 10,000 francs. The arrest of the two men led to the discovery of two packages at Nord station addressed to them, containing letters from London and Germany. Dytmer is a sheep dealer and with Eberhard, or Raynaert, is supposed to be implicated in the mail robbery at Verviers.

An Offering to the Queen.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—A committee has been organized with a view of presenting a public offering to the queen, which shall be wholly the contribution of women and girls. Donations ranging in amount from 1 penny to £1 are solicited, and the nature of the offering is to be left to the decision of the queen herself. All of the great ladies of England are interested in the movement, and will establish committees throughout the country in furtherance of the project.

A Threat to the Sick Man.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—The Morning Post, in an inspired article, warns Turkey against further coquetting with Russia. The British government, The Post says, has undergone great sacrifices to uphold the integrity of Turkey, even acting against the opinion of a large portion of the people of England, and any hesitation on the part of Turkey now, will compel England to pursue a course to counteract Russia's threats, involving measures which will speedily impress the porte that her present policy is in opposition to her interests.

Going to Fast Seventy-Two Days.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—Salvator Mortabelli, a Maltese, has begun a seventy-two days' fast at Philippeville, Algeria. Mortabelli was formerly in the British navy and during his period of service was wrecked on the coast of a desert island where he remained seventy-two days without tasting food.

THE CHRISTIAN ON TRIAL THE THEME OF HIS DISCOURSE.

The World, Conscience, an Angel and the Holy Ghost Bear Witness Against Him, but Christ Pleads His Case and He is Saved.

BROOKLYN, Dec. 19.—The Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D., preached to-day in the Brooklyn Tabernacle on the subject: "On Trial," taking for his text I John i, 2: "We have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous," he said:

Standing in a court room you say to yourself: "At this bar crime has often been arraigned; at this witness stand the oath has often been taken; at this jurors' bench the verdict has been rendered, at this judge's desk sentence has been pronounced." But I have to tell you to-day of a trial higher than any oyer and terminer, or circuit, or supreme, or chancery. It is the trial of every Christian man for the life of his soul. This trial is different from any other in the fact that it is both civil and criminal. The issues at stake are tremendous, and I shall in my sermon show you, first, what are the grounds of complaint; then who are the witnesses in the cause, and lastly, who are the advocates.

When a trial is called on, the first thing is to have the indictment read. Stand up, then, O Christian man, and hear the indictment of the court of high heaven against thy soul! It is an indictment of ten counts, for thou hast directly or indirectly broken all the ten commandments. You know how it thundered on Sinai, and when God came down how the mountain rocked, and the smoke ascended as from a smoldering furnace, and the darkness gathered thick, and the loud, deep trumpet uttered the words: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die!" Are you guilty or not guilty? Do not put in a negative plea too quick, for I have to announce that "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God. There is none that doeth good; no, not one. Whosoever shall keep the whole law yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all." Do not, therefore, be too hasty in pronouncing yourself not guilty.

This lawsuit before us also charges you with the breaking of a solemn contract. Many a time did we promise to be the Lord's. We got down on our knees and said: "O Lord, I am Thine now and forever." Did you keep the promise? Have you stood up to the contract? I go back to your first communion. You remember it as well as if it were yesterday. You know how the vision of the cross rose before you. You remember how from the head, and the hands, and the side, and the feet, there came bleeding forth these two words: "Remember me!" You recall how the cup of communion trembled in your hand when you first took it; and as in a sea shell you may hear, or think you hear, the roaring of the surf even after the shell has been taken from the beach, so you lifted the cup of communion, and you heard in it the surging of the great ocean of a Saviour's agony; and you came forth from that communion service with face shining as though you had been on the Mount of Transfiguration; and the very air seemed tremulous with the love of Jesus, and the woods, and the leaves, and the grass, and the birds were brighter and sweeter voiced than ever before, and you said down in the very depths of your soul: "Lord, Thou knowest all things; Thou knowest that I love thee." Have you kept the bargain, O Christian man? Have you not sometimes faltered when you ought to have been true? Have you not been proud when you ought to have been humble? Have you not played the coward when you ought to have been the hero? I charge it upon you and I charge it upon myself—we have broken the contract.

Still further, this lawsuit claims damages at your hands. The greatest slander on the Christian religion is an inconsistent professor. The Bible says religion is one thing; we by our inconsistency say religion is some other thing, and what is more deplorable about it is, that people can see faults in others while they cannot see any in themselves. If you shall at any time find some miserable old gossip, with imperfections from the crown of her head to the sole of her foot, a perfect blotch of sin herself, she will go tattling, tattling, tattling all the years of her life, about the inconsistencies of others, having no idea that she is inconsistent herself. God save the world from the gossip, female and male! I think the males are the worst. Now the chariot of Christ's salvation goes on through the world, but it is our inconsistencies, my brethren, that block up the wheels, while all along the line there ought to have been cast nothing but palm branches, and the shout should have been lifted, "Hosanna to the son of David."

Now you have heard the indictment read. Are you ready to plead guilty or not guilty? Perhaps you are not ready yet to plead. Then the trial will go on. The witnesses will be called, and we shall have the matter decided. In the name of God I now make proclamation: "Oyez! oyez! oyez! Whosoever hath anything to offer in this trial, in which God is the plaintiff and the Christian soul the defendant, let him now step forth and give testimony in this solemn trial."

The first witness that I call upon the stand in behalf of the prosecution is the World—all critical and observant of Christian character. You know that there are people around you who perpetually banquet on the frailties of God's children. You may know, if you have lived in the country, that a crow cares for nothing so much as carrion. There are those who imagine that out of the faults of Christians they can make a bridge of boats across the stream of death, and they are going to try it; but, alas, for the mistake! When they get amid stream away will go the bridge and down will go their soul to perdition. O, World of the greedy eye and the hard heart, come on the stand now and testify in behalf of the prosecution against this Christian soul on trial. What do you know about this Christian man? "Oh," says the World, "I know a great deal about him. He talks about putting his treasures in Heaven, but he is the sharpest man in a trade I ever knew. He seems to want us to believe that he is a child of God, but he is just full of imperfections. I do not know but I am a great deal better than he is now. Oftentimes he is very earthly, and he talks so little about Christ and so much about himself, I am very glad to testify that this is a bad man."

Stop, O World with the greedy eye and the hard heart. I fear you are too much interested in this trial to give impartial evidence. Let all those who hear the testimony of this witness know that there is an old family quarrel between these two parties. There always has been a variance between the World and the Church, and while the world on the witness stand to-day has told a great deal of truth about this Christian man, you must take it all with some allowance, remembering that they still keep the old grudge good. O, World of the greedy eye and the hard heart, that will do. You may sit down.

The second witness I call in this case is Conscience. Who art thou, Oh Conscience? What is your business? Where were you born? What are you doing here? "Oh!" says Conscience, "I was born in heaven. I came down to befriend this man. I have lived with him. I have instructed him. I have warned him. I showed him the right and the wrong, advising him to take the one and eschew the other. I have kindled a great light in his soul. With a whip of scorpions I have scourged his wickedness and I have tried to cheer him when doing right; and yet I am compelled to testify on the stand to-day that he has sometimes rejected my mission. Oh, how many cups of life have I pressed to his lips that he dashed down, and how often has he stood with his hard heel on the bleeding heart of the Son of God! It pains me very much that I have to testify against this Christian man, and yet I must, in behalf of Him who will in no wise clear the guilty, say that this Christian man has done wrong. He has been worldly. He has been neglectful. He has done a thousand things he ought not to have done, and left undone a thousand things he ought to have done." That will do, Conscience. You can sit down.

The third witness I call in the case, is an Angel of God. Bright and shining one, what doest thou here? What hast thou to say against this man on trial? "Oh!" says the angel, "I have been a messenger to him. I have guarded him. I have watched him. With this wing I have defended him, and oftentimes when he knew it not I led him into the green pastures and beside the still waters. I snatched from him the poisoned chalices. When bad spirits came upon him to destroy him I fought them back with infinite fierceness; and yet I have to testify to-day that he has rejected my mission. He has not done as he ought to have done. Though I came from the sky he drove me back. Though with this wing I defended him, and though with this voice I wooed him, I have to announce his multiplied imperfections. I dare not keep back the testimony, for then I should not dare to appear again amongst the sinless ones before the white throne."

There is only one more witness to be called on behalf of the prosecution, and that is the great, the holy, the august, the omnipotent Spirit of God. We bow down before Him. Holy Spirit, knowest thou this man? "Oh, yes," says the holy one, "I know him. I have striven with him ten thousand times, and though sometimes he did seem to repent, he fell back again as often from his first estate. Ten thousand times ten thousand has he grieved Me, although the Bible warned him saying: 'Grieve not the Holy Ghost. Quench not the spirit.' Yes, he has driven Me back. Though I am the third person of the Trinity he has trampled on my mission, and the blood of the atonement that I brought with which to cleanse his soul, he sometimes despised. I came from the throne of God to convert, and comfort, and sanctify, and yet look at that man, and see what he is compared with what, unresisted, I would have made him."

The evidence on the part of the prosecution has closed. Now let the defense bring on the rebuttal testimony. What have you, O Christian soul, to bring in reply to this evidence of the World, of the Conscience, of the Angel and of the Holy Ghost? No evidence? Are all these things true? "Yes, unclean, unclean," says every Christian soul. What! Do you not begin to tremble at the thought of condemnation?

We have come now to the most interesting part of this great trial. The evidence all in, the advocates speak. The profession of an advocate is full of responsibility. In England and the United States there have arisen men who in this calling have been honored by their race and thrown contempt upon those who in the profession have been guilty of a great many meannesses. That profession will be honorable as long as it has attached to it such names as Mansfield, and Marshall, and Story, and Kent, and Southard and William Wirt. The court room has sometimes been the scene of very marvelous and thrilling things. Some of you remember the famous Girard will case, where one of our advocates pleaded the cause of the Bible and Christianity in masterly Anglo-Saxon, every paragraph a thunderbolt.

Some of you have read of the famous trial in Westminster hall of Warren Hastings, the despoiler of India. That great man had conquered India by splendid talents, by courage, by bribes, by gigantic dishonesty. The whole world had rung with applause or condemnation. Gathered in Westminster hall was one of the most famous audiences ever gathered. Foreign ministers and princes sat there. Peers marched in, clad in ermine and gold. Mighty men and women from all lands looked down upon the scene. Amid all that pomp and splendor, and amid an excitement such as has seldom been seen in any court room, Edmund Burke advanced, in a speech which will last as long as the English language, concluding with this burning charge, which made Warren Hastings cringe and cower: "I impeach him in the name of the Commons house of parliament, whose trust he has betrayed. I impeach him in the name of the English nation, whose ancient honor he has sullied. I impeach him in the name of the people of India, whose rights he has trampled on, and whose country he has turned into a desert. And, lastly, in the name of human nature, in the name of both sexes, in the name of every age and rank, I impeach him as the common enemy and oppressor of all."

But I turn from the recital of these memorable occasions to a grander trial, and I have to tell you that in this trial of the Christian for the life of his soul the advocates are mightier, wiser and more eloquent. The evidence all being in, Justice rises on behalf of the prosecution to make his plea. With the Bible open in his hand he reads the law, stern and inflexible, and the penalty: "The soul that sinneth it shall die." Then he says: "O thou, judge and lawgiver, this is thine own statute, and all the evidence in earth and heaven agrees in stating that this man has sinned against all these enactments. Now let the sword leap from its scabbard. Shall a man go through the very flames of Sinai unsinged? Let the law be executed. Let judgment be pronounced. Let him die. I demand that he die."

O Christian, does it not look very dark for thee? Who will plead on thy side in so forlorn a cause? Sometimes a man will be brought into a court of law, and he will have no friends and no money, and the judge will look over the bar and say: "Is there any one who will volunteer to take this man's case and defend him?" and some young man rises up and says: "I will be his counsel," perhaps starting on from that very point to a great and brilliant career. Now, in this matter of the soul, as you have nothing to pay for counsel, do you think that any one will volunteer? Yes, yes; I see one rising. He is young man, only 30 years of age. I see His countenance suffused with tears and covered with blood, and all the galleries of heaven are thrilled with the spectacle. Thanks be unto God! "We have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous."

O, Christian soul, your case begins to look better. I think, perhaps, after all you may not have to die. The best advocate in all the universe has taken your side. No one was ever so qualified to defend a man as this advocate is qualified to defend you. He knows all the law, all its demands, all its penalties. He is always ready. No new turn of the case can surprise Him, and He will plead for you for nothing as earnestly as though you brought a world of treasures to His feet. Besides that he has undertaken the care of thousands who were as forlorn as you, and He has never lost a case. Courage, O Christian soul! I think that after all there may be some chance for you, for the great advocate rises to make his plea. He says: "I admit all that has been proved against my client. I admit all these sins, aye, more; but look at that wounded hand of mine, and look at that other wounded hand, and at my right foot and at my left foot. But all these wounds I plead for his clearance. Count all the drops of my tears. Count all the drops of my blood. By the humiliation of Bethlehem, by the sweat of Gethsemane, by the sufferings of the cross, I demand that he go free. On this arm he hath leaned; to this heart he hath flown; in my tears he hath washed; on my righteousness he hath depended. Let him go free; I am the ransom. Let him escape the lash; I took the scourgings. Let the cup pass from him; I drank it to the dregs. Put on him the crown of life, for I have worn the crown of thorns. Over against my cross of shame set his throne of triumph."

Well, the counsel on both sides have spoken, and there is only one more thing now remaining, and that is the awarding of the judgment. If you have ever been in a court room you know the silence, and the solemnity, when the verdict is about to be rendered or the judgment about to be given. About this soul on trial, shall it be saved or shall it be lost? Attention! above, around, beneath. All the universe cries, "Hear! Hear!"

The judge rises and gives this decision, never to be changed, never to be revoked. "There is, therefore, now no condemnation to them who are in Christ Jesus."

"The soul that on Jesus hath leaned for repose,
I will not, I will not, desert to His foes;
That soul, though all hell should endeavor to shake,
I'll never, no never, no never forsake."

But, my friends, there is coming a day of trial in which not only the saint, but the sinner must appear. That day of trial will come very suddenly. The farmer will be at the plow, the merchant will be in the counting room, the woodman will be ringing his ax on the hickories, the weaver will have his foot on the treadle, the manufacturer will be walking amid the buzz of looms and the clack of flying machinery, the counsel may be standing at the bar pleading the law, the minister may be in the pulpit pleading the gospel, the drunkard may be reeling amid his cups, and the blasphemer with the oath caught between his teeth.

Lo! The sun hides. Night comes down at mid-noon. A wave of darkness rolls over the earth. The stars appear at noonday. The earth shudders and throbs. There an earthquake opens and a city sinks as a crocodile would crunch a child. Mountains roll in their sockets and send down their granite cliffs in an avalanche of rock. Rivers pause in their chase for the sea, and ocean, upreaning, cries to flying Alps and Himalayas. Beasts bellow and moan, and snuff up the darkness. Clouds fly like flocks of swift eagles. Great thunders beat and boom and burst. Stars shoot and fall. The Almighty, rising on his throne, declares that time shall be no longer, and the archangel's trump repeats it till all the living hear, and the continents of dead spring to their feet, crying: "Time shall be no longer!" Oh, on that day, will you be ready?

I have shown you how well the Christain will get off in his trial. Will you get off as well in your trial? Will Christ plead on your side or will he plead against you? Oh, what will you do in the last great assize, if your conscience is against you, and the world is against you, and the angels of heaven are against you, and the Holy Spirit is against you, and the Lord God Almighty is against you! Better this day secure an advocate.

You will notice how quickly a thoroughly successful article is imitated, and also that the imitations are without merit, as they are gotten up by unscrupulous parties. Beware of imitations of Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic. Young Woman Burned to Death.

ARMADA, Mich., Dec. 20.—The fruit evaporator of John H. Stump caught fire soon after midnight Saturday night. Elizabeth Stump, aged 22, a sister of the proprietor, was asleep in the building at the time. When Stump arrived on the scene he raised a ladder and heroically tried to rescue her, but was beaten back by the flames which burst through the window, throwing him to the ground. He was picked up insensible, with a fractured hip and a terrible cut in his head. Notwithstanding the efforts of the workmen the building was consumed. Sunday morning the body of Miss Stump was taken from the ruins burned beyond recognition. Loss, $20,000 uninsured.

Some More of Our Resources.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 20.—Ralph Peters superintendent of the Little Miami railroad, has just brought fine specimens of malachite from a quarry discovered two years ago at a point on the Marietta and North Georgia road 300 miles from Marietta, Ga., where it lies exposed on the surface, 150 feet in thickness. It was thought to be soapstone until the owners were puzzled over a queer quality and had specimens polished and submitted to experts, who pronounce it malachite equal to any found in Siberia or Switzerland, the only other places where it is known to exist.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all coughs and colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this wonderful Discovery. Trial bottles free at Frank Sherer & Co.s' drug store.

ROBERTS ON RAILWAY POOLS.

He Thinks the People Will Have Them, However High They Come.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20.—President Roberts, Second Vice President Thompson, and their attorneys, Messrs. Scott, MacVeagh and Logan, answered the call of Attorney General Cassidy for them to appear and give information on the coal and trunk line pool suits. Mr. Roberts testified that the trunk line organization did not propose to control the amount of freight, nor even to fix the proportionate amount which each road should carry of the total amount shipped. He acknowledged that his company had contributed $250,000 to maintain the freight schedules, and said that course had been forced upon them by the governor of Pennsylvania countenancing the starting of corporations organized by fictitious issue of stock, rendering it necessary for his company to protect itself. Without a pooling arrangement, he said, the wildest competition would take place, and shippers would never know whether their rivals were getting better rates or not. Such a state of affairs would hurt the people and the railroads. The Pennsylvania road had frequently been on the eve of withdrawing from the contract.

"If you are willing to withdraw from the pool," broke in Mr. Cassady, "why not let me take out the injunction now?"

"Because I don't think the people agree either with you or with me," answered Mr. Roberts. "If the Pennsylvania company were to withdraw from the pool, a break in the traffic organizations all over the United States would follow, and that would be a greater responsibility than we care to shoulder."

The hearing was adjourned.

Enlivened the Matinee.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 20.—The racing matinee which is held daily on Park avenue was Saturday enlivened by a duel between R. F. Jones and M. D. Wilson with horse whips. Considerable rivalry has existed between these gentlemen as to the merits of their horses, and when they were speeding side by side Jones drew his whip and struck at Wilson. The latter, who had the faster horse, reined in his steed, and also rained a shower of blows upon the head of Jones, cutting and slashing that gentleman savagely for a distance of two blocks, while the horses were going at a breakneck pace. Mr. Jones was accompanied by a lady, but Wilson managed to avoid hitting her, while he showered blows upon her escort.

A QUESTION ABOUT

Brown's Iron Bitters

ANSWERED.

The question has probably been asked thousands of times, "How can Brown's Iron Bitters cure everything?" Well, it doesn't. But it does cure any disease for which a reputable physician would prescribe IRON. Physicians recognize Iron as the best restorative agent known to the profession, and inquiry of any leading chemical firm will substantiate the assertion that there are more preparations of iron than of any other substance used in medicine. This shows conclusively that iron is acknowledged to be the most important factor in successful medical practice. It is, however, a remarkable fact, that prior to the discovery of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS no perfectly satisfactory iron combination had ever been found.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not injure the teeth, cause headache, or produce constipation—all other iron medicines do. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS cures Indigestion, Biliousness, Weakness, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Chills and Fevers, Tired Feeling, General Debility, Pain in the Side, Back or Limbs, Headache and Neuralgia—for all these ailments Iron is prescribed daily.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, however, does not cure in a minute. Like all other thorough medicines, it acts slowly. When taken by men the first symptom of benefit is renewed energy. The muscles then become firmer, the digestion improves, the bowels are active. In women the effect is usually more rapid and marked. The eyes begin at once to brighten; the skin clears up; healthy color comes to the cheeks; nervousness disappears; functional derangements become regular, and if a nursing mother, abundant sustenance is supplied for the child. Remember Brown's Iron Bitters is the ONLY iron medicine that is not injurious. Physicians and Druggists recommend it.

—A well known Janesville business man was in Chicago the other day and, while standing in the Northwestern depot, was approached by a western-looking man that he at once put down for a sharper. "Just wait until he says, 'aren't you the son of J. Obediah Green, of Kalamazoo?' and then watch me smash him," he murmured to himself. But that evidently wasn't the stranger's idea, "I'm dead broke, boss," he said frankly, "and I want to get home Let me take a few dollars and I'll send you up a buffalo robe from some that I've got laying over in the other depot" The Janesville man thought a minute. Here was a chance to get a good lap robe without very much expense. This man evidently wasn't such a bad sort of a fellow after all. "All right. You send the robe up by express, I'm going out on this train," he replied, handing over two silver dollars. That was nearly a week ago. Since then the speculator in buffalo robes has been at the express office every day but no package with a harness shop smell has yet arrived and he begins to feel discouraged. He is afraid that the man lost his address while on his way for the robe.

AT THE CHURCHES.

BAPTIST.

The Rev. Dr. Hodge preached last evening upon the faith shown by Noah and the method of his deliverance. He found his text in Hebrews 11:7, "By faith Noah, being warned by God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear prepared an ark to the saving of his house; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith." The sermon was a very able and practical one, and was listened to by a very fair sized audience.

A business meeting of the church and society will be held this week to consider the matter of a reorganization. The present organization is under a special act of legislature. It is now proposed to change it so that it will come under the revised statutes of the state.

PRESBYTERIAN.

Last evening the pastor, Rev. W. F. Brown, preached a strong sermon upon the redemption from sin which God offers. In speaking of the argument that it was not right for God to deny mankind the privileges that he gave Adam, he said that the case was the same as if a man who was entrusted with a city should betray it to the enemy, and when it was recaptured again his children should claim it as their rightful property. We can none of us re-enter Eden, but we have another plan of Salvation offered and why should we want more?

TRINITY EPISCOPAL.

The frivolity that has crept into everything of to-day not even sparing the church was the Rev. Dr. Conover's theme last evening. Among other things he spoke strongly against the ways of raising money that are seen at so many church fairs and similar entertainments. At the close of the service a collection was taken up to furnish music for the choir.

FIRST METHODIST.

The Rev. Thomas Walker preached last evening upon Christ's lamentation over Jerusalem. He said that the grief was not caused by the coming destruction of material things. These could have been replaced in an instant. It symbolized instead Christ's sorrow because so many refused to seek the refuge offered by the scriptures. The sermon was a very excellent one and the church was well filled.

COURT STREET METHODIST.

The morning service was well attended, and the pastor preached a very excellent sermon on the "Eleventh Commandment." In the evening he delivered his second lecture on "Hard Times," indicating the cure from various standpoints. The young people's meeting at six o'cloc was also well attended.

CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. T. G. Gardner, of Hudson, Ohio occupied this pulpit yesterday. In the morning he spoke of the need of more ministers, there being one thousand vacant churches in the Congregational fold. In the evening he gave an address to young men. Rev. Gardner represents the American Educational Society, a society which aids young men preparing for the christian ministry and he made an earnest plea for more money for the cause he represents.

ALL SOULS.

"The History of Sunday Observance' was the subject upon which Rev. Joseph Waite preached to a large audience yesterday morning. Sunday, he said, was largely what we made it. Had any other day in the week been selected it would be the same, but we should not make the mistake of leaving our Sunday morals for that day alone. They should be the same all through the week.

The New Opera House.

The seats in Mr. Peter Myers' new opera house were about two-thirds filled on Saturday evening—the occasion being a complimentary reception to Mr. Myers and the opening or dedication of the new temple of art. The committee of arrangements—consisting of Dr. Henry Palmer Dr. J. B. Whiting, E. M. Hyzer, Esq., ex-Mayor Anson Rogers, Ald. T. T. Croft, Hon. Hiram Merrill, E. T. Foote, Geo. O. McLean, and J. W. Bates—had arranged an entertaining programme, and all the details were so perfected that everything moved right along in order, and without a hitch. His Honor, Mayor John Winans, presided. At eight o'clock, he called the audience to order, stating that this gathering was for a two-fold purpose—not only to dedicate this beautiful opera house to the purpose for which it was intended, but to pay our respects to Mr. Peter Myers, who, by his enterprise and generosity, had provided such an elegant place. He announced that a programme had been prepared by the committee, which would doubtless meet the approval of all. He then introduced the celebrated Bach's Milwaukee orchestra of eighteen instruments whose first number was "The Inauguration," with overture, by Chr. Bach. The fine playing of this excellent orchestra throughout the evening, was frequently encored, especially the "William Tell," the "Mikado," and other pieces, and the orchestra won many new friends in the Bower City.

Following the "Inauguration" Mayor Winans introduced E. M. Hyzer, Esq., as the orator of the evening. Mr. Hyzer after reading a brief selection from one of Plato's Symposiums, spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:—In contemplating the history and capacity of the human mind, the power that most challenges our admiration and wonder is that of asking why? that never satisfied mental interrogation, that restless, yearning, intellectual questioning that seeks to solve the mystery which surrounds the creature man. In that questioning mental condition lay potentially art, science, religion and civilization, all that we are or have, in comparison with what we were and had not. Harvey looked upon the human frame, asked why, and for man the life blood began to circulate. Galilio looked upon the world, asked why, and for the first time since it took its place in the universe the world moved. Kepler turned his eyes heavenward, interrogated the stars, and before the astonished gaze of mankind the planets marshaled themselves in order and obeyed celestial laws. Newton saw a falling body, and to his mind came the eternal question, and men were possessed of the law that held worlds in their places, limited the orbits of planets and marked out the resting places of stars. A man saw the vapor rising by the hearth, and his mental interrogatory caused earthly time and space to fade and multiplied a thousand times the power of the human hand.

The capacity of framing that word has led men "out to the flaming bounds of space where angels tremble as they gaze." It has led him to trace life from its magnificent perfection backward to the throbbing cell just starting on its mission of building bone and muscle and nerve and artery; it has led him to walk with faltering footsteps up to the very mouth of that cheerless cavern where death sits, pale and remorseless, touch the icy hand he cannot see, and beg the favor of looking upon his hideous face; it has led him to climb the rugged front of Sinai, penetrate the clouds and darkness, strain his eye toward the summit, and seek to solve the mystery of the infinite Invisible.

This labor is the mission of mind upon earth, and in its effort to solve these problems comes that elevation which seems to be the purpose of earthly probation.

On such an occasion as this, in this presence, the ever repeated question comes, and we wonder why this lavish display, this thronging assemblage.

The endless, tireless, restless search for the gold of this world, which so often openly, and so frequently in secret, moves the springs of human action, has no place here; the wasting fires of ambition have not brought us together. But deep down among the perennial springs of the human heart there is implanted an emotion which leads us here to gaze on beauteous things and listen to strains of beauteous music. The fountains of that emotion have never yet been found, but the pure stream has been traced so far that it seems to have risen in a land where all is pure and good, and flown by pearly gates and over golden streets, and we have called it by that name which is now freighted with such various meaning, Beauty.

Again comes the inevitable interrogation, why do we listen to the babbling of this brooklet as it gently flows over its smooth pebbles and holds up its laughing face to be kissed by the sunlight? Here lies the answer and here the only rational excuse for so much labor and so great appreciation. No man ever yet gazed upon a lovely landscape upon which the gentle rays of the setting sun were shedding a benediction of beauty, without entertaining kindlier intentions, gentler thoughts, without momentary self-forgetfulness, and therefore taking a step upward. Observe, I say, a man cannot do this; the thought does not include the brute, though he walk upward and "bear the outward semblence." Man has ever mounted upward by steps, not leaps. Wings he had not when he first began his weary pilgrimage from the dark valleys where he found himself. Symbols stood for ideas, idols for Gods, and hence it was, and is yet, necessary for him to mount by slow degrees from the less to the greater, from the symbol to the idea. So it is that the keen appreciation of beautiful things has taught, that above them all there is a supreme beautiful—a harmony in which all discords will be hushed. The attainment to this idea has been through many paths and by slow and toilsome journeys. Man had looked on the beauty of the sun, on gardens of Eden, on delicately penciled rose-leaves, on laughing brooklets dancing over pebbly beds to warbling music of feathered songsters, for ages before that man, far in advance of his fellows, said

"How manifold are thy works, Oh God;
In Wisdom hast Thou made them all."

It is said that when men gaze long and well on that great picture, the Madonna of San Sisto, the lineaments of the faces on the canvas fade away, and if they look rightly, they see mirrored in those faces the divine vision upon which the peaceful eyes are resting. So with us, gazing for a lifetime upon the beautiful, we may at least know that the conception, which for want of a better name we have called beauty, is but the reflection of that mighty, intelligent Goodness, who has let fall the light of His countenance upon the creatures of His hand, and which have, like flowers to the light, turned their faces toward Him.

This, then, is the mission of beauty; but let us not flatter ourselves that, being possessed of the secret, we have reached the end. There are sights of beauty too bright for our eyes, which are yet but accustomed to the dawn. There is brilliancy which we are not yet prepared to look upon; there are harmonies which we cannot yet hear, for our eyes are dimmed with the mists of earth and our ears are deafened with the noise of its strife. But it may be that in some future time, by creeping up these steps of beauty, up from the depths of earth, up beyond the dust and the clouds, up through the mortal, up through the portals of death, up to the heights of immortality, mankind may stand, while listening to the music of the spheres, and gaze with steadfast soul upon the beauty of that mighty mosaic, the universe of God.

In the brief time that has been allotted to me I have attempted to suggest that this temple of art, these elegant surroundings, these tasteful decorations, are helps, guide-boards, resting places, where we may stop for breath in our ascent to the altitude referred to in Symposium from which I read. They are worthy of our unbounded admiration, and to the generous citizen who has made it possible for us to enjoy them, we return our heart-felt thanks and good wishes.

Cornet solo by A. Bode, accompanied by Bach's orchestra. Very fine and was received with great applause.

In a few humorous words Mayor Winans introduced Hon. H. A. Patterson, who spoke as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen: When requested to occupy not more than five minutes of the time to be devoted to the exercises and entertainment of this interesting occasion, having learned who and what were to precede, and who and what to follow my brief appearance, I soon came to the conclusion that I would find but little difficulty in making my assigned few minutes useful, by causing a more favorable estimate of all that had gone before, and a keener relish of all that will succeed. I believe that in the announcement of the object of this evening's meeting, the words benefit and opening were used. I think the benefit to-night, is like that mercy defined by Shakespeare, which blesses and benefits him that gives and him that receives, and with a doubt which is favored more, We have presented for our consideration this evening, a combination of the useful and the beautiful; and first, we find the useful man; next this beautiful edifice, the crowning product of his efforts; for while Peter Myers did not literally fashion and develope this architectural gem, we know that the calculations of his brain, and efforts of his hands made it possible for other brains and other hands to devise its symmetry, fashion its ornate designs, and with cunning and practiced pencil to make it rival the star studded arch of the heavens. The man to whom we are indebted for this substantial and ornamental source of pleasure, advantage and pride, found himself early in life, subject to that inexorable law, that reigns over all mankind, the necessity for exertion to obtain shelter, raiment and food. Having found in persistent and unremitting industry and rigid but rational economy, what philosophy and science sought for in vain, that alchemy which transmues the baser elements into gold, he pressed on to the attainment of competence, and finally to a generous surplus; to the point that tests the underlying and controling elements of any man. It is, at least, as important to know how to use, as how to acquire money. Fortunate was it for him, fortunate for our lovely city, that Peter Myers counted that day almost lost, that did not see at his behest

Brick on brick arise
In solid wall toward the skies.

Spurning effeminate idleness and luxury, he steadily held to the rough handles of hard industry, until, if from the sum total of our city, were subtracted, what Peter Myers has contributed in stable form, the remainder would be much smaller than is that sum, and such remainder would be much less valuable than it is in conjunction with what this one man has added. There is no business structure, no palatial residence, no humble home in Janesville, that is not more valuable by reason of the presence and activity of Peter Myers. Those material accumulations called wealth, are the trunks from which spring the flowers, and upon which mature the fruitage of a higher, brouder and better life; the true aliment of the soul-educating arts, and all forms of elevating and refining culture. Through all things a vein of progress runs, and it is in accordance with the Divine order and the fitness of progressive events, that the latest utilization of his wealth by Mr. Myers, should result in the unfolding of this charming edifice, which overarches and surrounds us, with the choicest graces of mechanism, and with such rare shadings and blending of warm and enlivening hues as to suggest some fairy temple, constructed of buds and blossoms and clippings from rainbows; a place affording unsurpassed facilities for studying the manifold characters, characteristics and passions of humanity, as portrayed by master minds and delineated by master artists; where we may "see ourselves as others see us" and see others so like ourselves. Here may we learn to loath vice and all evils, and learn to love virtue and all goodness. Here may we see exposed and execrated the hideous demon avarice, and divine benevolence exhibited in her celestial garb. Here, on wings of delight, through a rich, pure atmosphere of harmony of instruments and voices, the soul may be wafted towards a comprehension of those symphonies that engage and enrapture angels. To such purposes, and to such only may this now fair and untainted temple be devoted. May nothing within its beautiful walls be heard or witnessed, that may not properly be heard or witnessed within the purest home. Thus and thus only, can this place remain a blessing, and the builder be truly honored. Sincere and heartfelt thanks to Mr. Myers for this beauteous gift, so appropriate to the peerless little city, which, bright and glowing with life and hope, sits so gracefully upon the shores of our lovely river, like an emerald pierced by a silver thread. And now having contributed so faintly, yet cheerfully, my mite of words in thanks and credit to Mr. Myers and praise of this splendid theatre, I am still unwilling to close, without adding a word for one, who, while most of her life labor has been hidden from public notice by the secluding limitations of home, that narrow but momentous sphere, yet has performed nobly and well her part. While the husband has labored and earned, the wife has labored and saved, and that which is saved, is earned again. Some men succeed unaided and alone; but with such a wife and helper as is Mrs. Myers a man can hardly fail. While then, we place a wreath of gratitude and honor upon the forehead of Peter Myers, I bespeak as fresh and fair, yea, a sweeter one for the brow of his unfaltering, faithful wife. May their remaining days of grace be many and blessed in the land to which they come as pioneers, in the city they have so largely and liberally aided in building and embellishing; and finally, may their reward be such as belongs to those, of, and to whom it shall be said, "Well done, good and faithful servants."

The "string" portion of the orchestra then played the "Night Song," which was well rendered.

Mayor Winans remarked that on occasions like this, the best was always reserved until the last, at the same time introducing Captain Pliny Norcross. Mr. Norcross said:

Ladies and Gentlemen:—

The year 1886, now so nearly ended, has been an important one in the history of Janesville. During this year the long talked of water works have been commenced. The section of railroad which puts us on the main line from Chicago to St. Paul has been completed. A street car system has been established. The cotton mills, which had been somewhat embarrassed by unforseen depression in trade have been re-organized and are doing to-day better than ever before, making as I understand 190,000 yards of cloth per week and paying out about 9,000 a month to over 400 operatives. Other manufacturing enterprises have been enlarged and several new ones established. A good number of homes, some of them quite elegant, have been built, and last but not least, this substantial temple dedicated to music, art and the drama, has been remodeled, enlarged, improved and beautified.

Let us hope that this year, so memorable in good things accomplished, is but the beginning of a series of a happy, growing, prosperous year for the people of this city. The city itself is one of the oldest and most substantial in the northwest. I doubt whether there is another in the United States where there is so little of caste, so much of the spirit of equality and fraternity among all classes as here in Janesville.

Mr. Myers, the gentleman to whom we this evening pay our tribute of honor, is one of its most energetic, persevering, public spirited citizens. We take great pleasure in saying upon this happy occasion that we appreciate the spirit which has actuated him during his long residence in our midst. We cheerfully acknowledge that to him, more than to any other individual, we are indebted for the solid appearance and enduring character of our business blocks. His wealth has not been hoarded for interest or usury or for outside investments, securely hidden from assessor and tax gatherer, but has been transformed into enduring monuments of stone and brick, in which commerce may thrive, where the traveler may find rest and refreshment, where our people may find homes or tenements, and where those who have a taste for the esthetic may gather and listen to the best literary, musical or dramatic talent of the country. In the light of these facts, the plain, peculiar man, Mr. Peter Myers, proprietor of this stately edifice, stands out in the front rank of public benefactors.

Others possessed of wealth seek personal ease and respite from care, or surround themselves with the elegancies and luxuries of life, or devote time and money to literary pursuits, or find pleasure in travel or personal adornment, or become willing slaves to the decrees and blandishments of society, or with ever increasing zeal pursue the alluring phantoms of political fame and honor. But this man looks upon all such efforts as unworthy of his zeal. He bends every energy of his life to the erection of block after block, considers each one thus built worthy of consideration only because it furnishes means with which to erect another. If his life is spared, as we all hope it will be, he will cover every available space in the city limits with temples of trade, art or manufacture, and then, like the Macedonian soldier, sigh for more worlds to conquer. Not only do we speak of him as a builder, but in view of the work he has performed, we must in justice regard him as a man of excellent taste. The work of his hand and brain are not shabby, ill looking affairs, built for to-day to perish to-morrow. We have no buildings which show more of durability and architectural harmony, more of comfort and elegance than those which he has erected. Whether it be a barn or an opera house he combines in it strength, permanence, convenience, size and comfort as well as symetrical proportions and embellishments..

As the ocean waves with resistless force and unceasing flow, wash away every foot print upon the sandy shore, so the fast fleeting years with relentless energy will obliterate from the shores of time, all record of man's achievements, save perhaps the doings of a favored few; yet so long as Janesville has a place among the cities of the State, her people cannot forget the man who has done so much to build up, enlarge and beautify the city, which for so many years has been his home. The very peculiarities which now cause a smile or careless criticism among his neighbors, will, in the future, be the salient points to distinguish him from the dead level of ordinary mortals and will be told to illustrate his career and character. The accumulation of wealth far greater than he can ever need, the fullness of years with their attendant pains and usual desire of rest, seem to incite him to greater efforts. Sixteen years ago last August, in company with a large audience, I sat within these walls and witnessed with great pleasure the dedication of the first opera house. At that time Mr. Myers was presented with a costly gold headed cane which had been purchased by a goodly number of the older citizens. The cane was presented in most felicitous language by Major May. He spoke somewhat at length of what Mr. Myers had then done for Janesville, and he expressed the hope that the cane would be of use to the donee, as in his declining years he trod the down hill part of the journey of life. In accepting Mr. Myers said that he was thankful for such a nice present from his long time neighbors, but he said he did not need it and did not expect to for some time. Alas for the dimness and uncertainty of human foresight. Many of those who purchased the cane are done with the joys and sorrows of this world and are at rest on the quiet, sunny slopes of Oak Hill, while the man whom they, by their gift, kindly admonished of the approach of old age, is more active and aggressive than ever.

Let it be suggested at the Myers House office that a man on the west side won't pay his rent, or that lumber is needed for a gang of carpenters, and does Mr. Myers send a boy or call for that cane? Does he stop to arrange his hair or black his boots? Does he step to the glass to see if his cravat is properly tied? Does he complain of being old and tired? Watch him as he flies down stairs, jumps off the side walk and without regard to street crossings, dust, mud or snow, takes a bee line for the objective point. Hear him when he meets the man he is in search of or encounters a director of the cotton factory on his way. The vigor of his style, the force of his language, the directness of his order, the flash of his eye suggests that the gold headed cane won't be needed for many years.

From a long and somewhat intimate acquaintance with Mr. Myers I am persuaded that he will never be chosen a Sunday school superintendent, nor will he ever be selected to lead the German. No one will charge him with being or wanting to be a dude, but in his tireless energy, indomitable will, restless industry, keen foresight, and the disposition and power to achieve grand results he is without a peer in this country. We all know him and he himself will admit he works too hard, and cares too little for the domestic and social duties of life. He comes of hardy, industrious, prudent, economical, frugal and French ancestry. He may go a step too far in his dislike of modern customs and habits but with that we have nothing to do. It is our pleasure to-night to thank him most heartily for the work of his life and especially for this, his latest improvement, which adds so much to the city in a general way and which will bring within easy access of us all the means for higher culture, greater pleasure and a more extended acquaintance with the best intellectual productions of the age.

And now, Mr. Myers, will you kindly permit me to ask, "what have you done with that cane?"

"The Knitters," by the orchestra, concluded the first part of the programme and with a breath of intermission, the orchestra introduced the second part by playing "William Tell," which so pleased the audience that an encore was demanded.

"The Chapel," by the singers of the Janesville Concordia society was well rendered, followed by a duet for flute and violincello by members of the orchestra.

Mrs. J. B. Day, Janesville's favorite reader, was then introduced and read in a most happy manner "A Strolling Actor's Story," which was so well rendered that she was compelled to again appear, rendering the story of "How Seccory Set the Hen".

The "Mikado" by the Bach's orchestra, was one of the capital pieces of music of the evening and was received with long continued applause, the orchestra being compelled to respond by playing another piece which was applauded long and loud.

"Becker's March", by the double male quartette, consisting of Messrs. M. A. Newman, C. E. Church, W. S. Jeffris G. K. Collin, F. Needham, Wm. Bladen, Clarence L. Clark and Fred Pabst, were well received.

"Nearer My God to Thee," by Bach's full orchestra, was played in a grand and inspiring manner, concluding the entertainment.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway did a magnanimous thing for the people of Janesville on this occasion, by furnishing free transportation to the members of Bach's orchestra from Milwaukee to Janesville and return, and furnishing special accommodations for the orchestra to return to Milton at twelve o'clock on Saturday night in order that they might return home on the Sunday morning train. For this act of generosity they will be remembered by our people.

THE NEW OPERA HOUSE

As Prof. Bach remarked when he stepped upon the opera house stage on Saturday evening and surveyed the auditorium 'Janesville has the most complete and handsomest opera house in the west. It is not as large as some others, but it is the most beautiful and attractive." There is the parquet and circle, the balcony and a gallery. The auditorium is eleven feet higher and nine feet wider than the old hall. Each division having a separate entrance. The stage is forty feet in depth, with all the necessary accommodations The painting of the interior is the work of Messrs. Rogers & Hutchinson, of this city, the frescoing of Messrs. Mitchell & Holback, of Chicago. The gas fitting is by A. C. Hickey & Co., of Chicago, and the chairs are from the house of A. H. Andrews & Co., of the same city. R. C. Yeomans, of this city, did the work of steam fitting. The moulding, (the plaster of Paris) is the work of Messrs. Airis & Galletly, of this city. All being complete in the respective departmets, and speaks well for the artists. The scenery now being put up is the work of Messrs. Sosman & Landis, of Chicago, and the the floors are to be carpeted by the house of Marshall Field & Co., Chicago. The carpenter work has been done by Messrs. Cole & Van Sycklen, under the personal supervision of Mr. Oscar Cobb, of Chicago, one of the leading architects in the country, and this is but another monument to his skill as a first class artist. Janesville now has an opera house in which her citizens will take great pride, trusting the management will give them none but first class amusements therein.

It is as necessary to have pure air in an oven, where our food is cooked, as in the house we live in. In an ordinary air tight oven, the oxygen, the life sustaining properties of the air, is burnt out, leaving carbonic acid gas, a poison to be absorbed by the article being cooked. The Badger stoves and ranges are constructed to admit a circulation of fresh air into the oven. Lives there a man with soul so dead, who unto his wife hath said, I can't afford a Badger.
